PLANNED WITH ME, MARRIED SOMEONE ELSE

I am grieving and do not know when I will stop crying. My boyfriend and I lived together for six years and have one child, a son. Six months ago, we started our wedding plans. We were even calling service providers. I was over the moon that I was finally getting married to the love of my life. Three weeks ago, he 'travelled' and has never returned. I still have all his property in my house. I learnt three days later that he wed another woman. I am stuck in the house and wondering what could have befallen this man. He has not explained anything. I can't even ask his relatives because they were at the wedding. The father of my child just got up and married somebody else. I never suspected, even for one day, that he was dating somebody else.

Leonah

CamScanner