

Farmers acquire latest farm skills

Farmers in Namayumba Town Council have learnt modern methods of farming after getting training at Namayumba Epicentre for fighting hunger.

The training was conducted by Hunger project, a non-profit making organisation whose major goal is to end hunger in the world with support from Postcode Lottery Foundation Sweden. The Epicentre also boasts of a demonstration farm where a variety of high yielding crops ranging from sweet potatoes, cassava, mangoes, oranges, moringa and aloe vera are grown. "High quality, drought resistant and fast yielding seeds have been distributed among 2,000 mothers with an aim of improving their yields," said Daisy Owomugasho, the country director Hunger project.

— Tom Brian Angurini

Pes

G
er
cr
export ea
ties to w
relevant

Steph
protect the cour
pest inv
agricult
"We a
transfoi

