Govt to promote cage fish farming

BY TOM BRIAN ANGURINI

Agriculture minister Vincent Ssempijja says government has taken keen interest in supporting and promoting cage fish farming in the country.

He made this revelation while addressing a press conference at the Uganda Media Center in Kampala this week.

"Government takes fisheries in general as a very important part of the economy. The president was very disappointed with people who introduced illegal types of fishing gears in lakes and rivers in the country and normally calls them traitors," he says.

According to him, Ugandans are very well aware of importance of fish, so killing immature ones is like killing our own children.
