

Friendly price set for Monitor Farm Clinic entry

BY DENIS BBOSA

dbbosa@ug.nationmedia.com

Imagine this, at only Shs70, 000, participants at the Monitor Farm Clinic at Kabanyoro, Gayaza due August 26, will be able to learn how to accrue millions from their farm businesses.

Monitor Publications Limited (MPL) marketing manager, Sarah Nalule, says the organisers have zeroed in on this pocket friendly fee to allow every prospective farmer attend the workshop that will change their livelihood forever.

"The entry fee is consummate to what this edition's participants will learn and gain from the clinic. Apart from helping the participants to attain practical skills for agriculture, we will have experienced farming trainers and technocrats from government institutions who will share their personal experience with participants," Nalule stressed.

The fee can be paid at the MPL offices in Namuwongo effective this week.

With improved knowledge, active and prospect modern farmers will be able to reap millions from the farming of coffee, banana, passion fruit, dairy, chili cassava, maize, sorghum, cotton and beans using organic fertilisers.

Participants will also be educated on how to adapt on the fickle weather patterns that threaten their farm production.

Next month's clinic will have trainers that are mainly experienced farmers.

Participants asking questions during the Mbarara Monitor Farm Clinic. (file photo)