

Rescue Kisenyi health centre

EDITOR: The Government need to investigate and penalise the contractor who handled the new Kampala Capital City Authority (KCCA) Kisenyi health facility. Its four years since the official commissioning of the KCCA Kisenyi Health Centre IV. The facility is located in the central division in Kampala district, the numbers of people accessing health services at this centre justifies its importance.

The staff are more than ready and giving their best in ensuring client satisfaction. However, it gets worse whenever it rains, the structure leaks terribly, especially at the laboratories and the conference room.

The situation is embarrassing to KCCA which is the responsible body for ensuring standards and procedures for construction in the city. As if this is not enough, even the plastic water garters are already broken and part of the roof is broken. It is sad all the efforts in ensuring effective health services delivery in the country are in vain. If not urgently addressed, this health facility will not be in position to serve Ugandans in the next three years which will again cost the Government and the city residents dearly
