Kampala car bond murder: Man charged for impersonating DPP Chibita

KAMPALA. A 32-year-old man has been charged before Buganda Road court and remanded to Luzira prison for allegedly impersonating the Director of Public Prosecutions (DPP) Mike Chibita and fraudulently got Shs25m.

It is alleged that Henry Luganda, a resident of Kasubi Nabulagala in Rubaga Division, Kampala, went to Luzira prison on January 8, and asked jailed city businessman Muhammed Ssebuwufu for Shs25m which he claimed he would give to the DPP in exchange for dropping his murder charges.

Ssebuwufu, the proprietor of Pine car bond in the city centre, is accused of beating to death a city businesswoman Donah Betty Katushabe over a Shs9m debt for a car got from his bond.

Information obtained by this newspaper indicates that after Luganda approached Ssebuwufu in prison with the deal, he agreed to pay the DPP to have him released from jail.

It is upon this information that Ssebuwufu informed his wife about the deal and asked her to first give Luganda Shs5m as part payment.

Caught at it

But before Ssebuwufu's wife could release the money, she shared the information with friends who were pursuing her husband's release on bail. One of the friends of Ssebuwufu's wife doubted whether Justice Chibita could ask for money in exchange for dropping charges against a suspect.

The friend called the DPP, who in response expressed ignorance of this fraudulent deal. A trap was laid and Luganda was arrested and subsequently charged.

The charges

The suspect now faces two charges of impersonation contrary to Section 381 of the Penal Code Act, and attempt to obtain money by false pretence contrary to Section 386 and 387.

The suspect returns to court today. This case comes barely a month after two people, Bob Joseph Nabasa and Martin Matovu, were charged with impersonating Chief Justice Bart Katureebe with intent of defrauding the proprietor of Shumuk Group of Companies Mukesh Shukla of about Shs450m.

The suspects pretended that they had been sent by the Chief Justice for the money.
