

18-
s said that
over the murder,
that everyone had
ed him before hearing of the story. The case was d to Monday (March 26).
commonly called Pato, was to - penalty. -
countries with 1...

t Vice-chancellors endorse Vision's University Guide

By Vivian Agaba

Two private university vice-chancellors have recommended parents, administrators in higher institutions of learning and prospective university students to take advantage of the upcoming University Guide, noting that it has all the necessary information for new university students.

"Parents/guardians and those yearning to join university, take time to read the New Vision's University Guide. It is rich with information on right career paths and which universities offer what courses among others. This is the kind of information one does not want to miss," Prof. Eriabu Lugujo, the vice-chancellor of Ndejje University, said.

Lugujo, an electrical engineer, academic and administrator at Ndejje, a private Christian university, said the guide has strategic information critical for the right career one would like to invest in.

"The current generation does not read. They want to get everything from the Internet.

■ Do not be duped by scams. You need to read our guide to get the most authentic and well researched information.

Universities and other education institutions, banks, corporate organisations and companies dealing in scholastic materials and products; all have packages for students in this university guide.

THE DEAL

However, the Internet might not give you all the necessary information you need to join the university. Reading the guide is the right way to go as it will help you make the right choices regarding your university education," he added.

The vice-chancellor of the International University of East Africa, Prof. Emeka Akaezuwa, also encouraged parents, students and administrators in all higher institutions of learning to read the guide, saying it has well-researched information, which makes it easy for one to make right choices.

This year's University Guide will be published next Thursday.

It offers unique and well researched information. It has all the information a student must know before joining the university; how to go through the university life and how to land the dream job after school.

The guide will also have content on accredited courses, universities and tuition for every course to effectively guide the students and their benefactors.

The guide will also cover related issues in the East African region, the African continent and various opportunities and offers on the global market and universities.

This time round, the guide will offer another unique research study about graduates and employment in the country and scholarship opportunities.