The quality of livestock feeds depends on many factors including transportation, storage, application and usage. Compromising any of the above while handling animal feeds or additives will affect quality of the final product. Locating areas where one can conveniently buy feeds and other requirements can also be stressful.

This is the challenge that Agrovvet, a company based on Mawanda Road in Kampala, wants to address by being a one-stop centre for all farm inputs from reputable manufacturers.

Bashir Mayiga, a veterinary officer working with Agrovvet, says they deal more in farm implements, as well as dairy, poultry and piggery products.
